

The Mercury News

By SAL PIZARRO | spizarro@bayareanewsgroup.com | Bay Area News Group
PUBLISHED: May 12, 2022 at 3:44 p.m. | UPDATED: May 13, 2022 at 9:45 a.m.

GOOD DEED DEPT.: Dr. Kamakshi Zeidler of Campbell medical practice Aesthetix is doing something to help the thousands of Ukrainians who have been wounded during Russia's invasion by donating a storage unit's worth of medical supplies that'll be delivered to hospitals, orphanages and shelters in Ukraine. She was spurred into action after her nurse, Oleksandra Moseychuk, asked to donate her paycheck in exchange for medical supplies to send to her native Ukraine.

The medical supplies, including IV fluids and other surgical items, were things that Aesthetix — a plastic surgery, dermatology and aesthetic medicine practice — had stocked up on during the COVID-19 pandemic. Moseychuk has been working with the organization Hearts for Ukraine to gather donations. You can find out more about their efforts at www.heartsforukraine.us.

Congratulations from

