Coastal Kids Home Care begins its 20th year with a newly expanded headquarters. Thanks to a $250,000 donation from Silicon Valley billionaire couple Valeta and T.J. Rodgers, the Rodgers Center for Children's Health in Salinas now has two more counseling rooms and an expanded physical and occupational therapy room. Coastal Kids provides in-home pediatric health services for children dealing with an injury or short-term illness, chronic conditions or developmental delays, and those needing end-of-life care. It currently serves children from King City to Mountain View, and plans to expand its range so it can reach patients within a four-hour radius. "We are proud to support the important work of Coastal Kids," T.J. Rodgers said in a press release. "The care they provide is truly a lifeline to families facing daunting challenges who often have no other place to turn."

Congratulations from
